

Final short assignment:

Review the materials that you have read and viewed this semester. Select a narrative essay, science news article (A Scientific American article or New York Times science article), or documentary that seems to you particularly compelling and effective.

Explain your selection and help us recognize the characteristics of this work that set it apart from its peers. Compare your selected work with some aspect of three other works. In what way might your selected work serve as a model for other writers and directors who wish to explore issues in medicine or public health?

Length: c. 500 words

Due date depends on oral presentation schedule.

- If you are presenting on Session 24, this assignment is due on Session 23.
- If you are presenting on Session 22 or Session 23, your due date is Session 24.

Reminder:

Second revision of major paper (narrative essay, critical review, Scientific American Update) Due Session 26.
